Grossman, Wolf
Born in Lelów (Poland). He died in 1925, at the age of sixty, in Częstochowa.

Greenberg [Grinberg], Szlama (Sol)
His closeness with Częstochowa does not stem merely from the fact that his wife, Necha Szpic z”l, was a Częstochower, but also from that, which Sol Greenberg - the communal activist, the philanthropist, the Jew and the man - is always there, wherever there is only a relief campaign for Jews, and all the more so for Częstochowa.

Born in Nowo Radomsko in 1873, the fourth son of Szmul and Szajndla, he already felt want, need and poverty in his younger years. The poverty in his parents’ home was such, that Szlojme’le was forced to quit cheder at the age of twelve because they could not pay his tuition fees. He was forced to leave his home and go out into the world to seek a purpose.

Szlojme’le came to Łódź, learnt the goldsmith’s trade for eight years and, being very capable by nature, he afterwards found employment in Będzin, where he spent a long time. Here, in Będzin, he made his first steps both in communal as well as cultural work, organising a theatrical troupe, and after some time he returned to Nowo Radomsko.

In 1899, he married Necha Szpic from Częstochowa and settled in Radomsko, [where he] took an active part in the communal life and made many friends.

An incident, which took place in Nowo Radomsko during the Russo-Japanese War in the years 1904-05, made a strong impression on Szlama Greenberg and, as a result, he decided that same year to leave his hometown and journey to America.

He arrived there in 1905 together with his wife Necha. Like any immigrant in those times, he walked the thorny path of the “shop”. But his stubbornness and energy did not leave him in the “shop” for long and, in a short time, he became independent - he became the pioneer and founder of the diamond centre in the Bowery [neighbourhood] in New York.

Over time, Sol Greenberg achieved his financial position and this enabled him to develop broad philanthropic and communal activity.

It is impossible to enumerate, in a brief biography, [all] the support and aid that Sol Greenberg has given [out over the course of the years to Jews in general and to his landsleit in particular.

Below, we wish to hereby present - based upon documents and bulletins which the Nowo-Radomsker Relief has hitherto published, a part of his work:

Starting with individual support to friends, acquaintances and relatives in general and to individual landsleit in particular - there is practically no philanthropic institution and aid campaign in New York in [*] which Sol Greenberg has not taken part. Even non-Jews from his hometown found in him the man with the heart and, through this, he gained the friendship of the Christian populace in Radomsko.

How high Sol Greenberg stands ethically, may be shown from the fact that he forgives even those individuals on whose account he was wronged due to matters pertaining solely to business.

Until now, the Nowo-Radomsker Relief has, in its publications, not yet provided a full account of Sol Greenberg’s activities as a relief activist. This is only being first written [now] and is soon to be published. We shall, here, only provide a few excerpts from the Nowo-Radomsker Society’s Golden Book [1], in which Sol Greenberg has been immortalised. Thirty-eight landsleit and friends wrote about just a small part of his activity as a relief activist.

[It contains] hundreds of greetings from individuals and organisations and also a personal letter from the deceased President Franklin Delano Roosevelt to Greenberg for his assistance in selling War Bonds.

Thirty-five Nowo-Radomsker soldiers saluted Greenberg for his activity in their benefit during the War and after returning from the army.

The American Federation for Polish Jews sent him a letter of gratitude (signed by [the chairman], Benjamin Winter) for his activity in benefit of the Polish Jews.

His home is adorned with numerous pictures by artists in recognition of his work.

Talmud Torahs, poor and barefoot children, a charitable loans fund and other institutions have been – and to this day still are being – maintained by him.

Here in America, he belongs to the following organisations:

Founder and father of Beis Lechem Ani’m [House of Bread (for the) Poor] in Manhattan and the Bronx; American Jewish Congress; Madiner Ba’al Tzdaka [2]; Hebrew House for Invalids; Ladies Mevaker Cholim [Visiting (the) Sick]; Bronx Society; Va’ad Hatzalah [3]; Hebrew Children’s House; Cong. Bais Yosef [House of Joseph]; Cong. Sha’ar Tefila [Gate of Prayer] and an array of some other forty-one institutions.

Shortly following the liberation of Radomsko, he set down the fund for a drive of $5,000 to rebuild his hometown – Nowo Radomsko.

He lives to this day in New York.
