

MAGALIF z ROZENTAŁÓW Łucja (1900–1943?), doctor. She was born in Częstochowa (according to another version, in Praszka), the daughter of Abram and Ida née Szenfeld.

From 1910, she studied in the 8-grade Waclaw Chrzanowski Girls Gimnazjum in Częstochowa. There, in 1917, she obtained her school-leaving examination certificate. She then studied in the Faculty of Medicine at the University of Warsaw. From April to October 1919, she worked as a volunteer in the Students Circle to Aid Soldiers. From March to July 1920, she worked as a sister [nurse] in a branch of the No.1 Military Hospital at ul. Kościuszki 24 (aleja Wolności 10) in Częstochowa. She obtained her medical degree on 1st July 1926 and specialised in children's illnesses.

Initially, she worked in Lutomorsk in the Łaski district and, at the end of the 1930s, in Pabianice. She lived at ul. Dąbrowskiego 1.

She perished during the German occupation in unknown circumstances.

Her husband was Jakub Magalif (1898–), an obstetrician (graduating in 1925), working in Lutomorsk and, at the end of the 1930s, in Pabianice.

Gliński, Słownik lekarzy i farmaceutów, vol. III, pp. 296–297. – Rocznik lekarski 1933/34, col. 348; Urzędowy spis lekarzy 1939, p. 138 (re: her husband).

Juliusz Sętowski