

J.C. Plai

Reb Srul Częstochowski

Reb Srul was one of the prominent Radomsko Chassidim, but his main activity was in the city's institutions. He was a dedicated member of the "Machzikei Hadas" council, the "Chevra Kadisha" and the "Hachnoses Kallah<sup>1</sup>". Reb Srul was a pious man in all his ways and stood out for his cheerful countenance and warm attitude towards all people. It was evident from his gait and speech that he was a true Torah scholar. His clothes were spotlessly clean. He was a central pillar of the Radomsko shtiebel called "the Cossack's shtiebel" and also did much to propagate Torah in the city.

His wife, Fajga Mincze, was also a woman of valour and a very active public figure, the main caretaker of the women's "Chevra Kadisha". Many stories were told of her wit and of her being a fine woman, always willing to do her husband's bidding in matters of charity and good deeds.

---

<sup>1</sup> [TN: See above, p.200.]