

Yeshayahu [Szaja] Landau

Ze'ev-Wolf Icek hy''d

He was the Vice-Chairman of the city's Zionist Organisation, as well as an active member in the administrations of various institutions, such as "*Achiezer*¹", the "Merchants and Manufacturers Union", the Hebrew high school, etc.

He was a man of unparalleled honesty, who dreamt of the return to Zion and gave his children a nationalistic education. His favourite tune was "Anu Olim Artza" ["We are Ascending to the Land of Israel"], which he continually sang throughout the War period. With great enthusiasm and satisfaction, he told his acquaintances that his daughter had married a young man who knew the Hebrew Bible perfectly and who had been brought up in a traditional Jewish manner!

(During the terrible War years, he revealed great selflessness. He never passed on an opportunity to help, to alleviate or to prevent troubles - even when this caused conflicts with his family, due to the danger involved).

His son Chaim survived the War, made Aliyah and now works in a governmental institution. He has even been sent abroad by the State to perform important duties on its behalf.

¹ [TN: See earlier article]