

The Book Committee

The “Linas Ha’Tzedek*” Society

This institution set itself, as its main task, to recruit members who were capable and also willing to take upon themselves the great mitzvah of visiting the sick and to participate in the “night watches” in the hospitals, as well as in the private homes, of the severely ill, whose families were themselves no longer able to deal with their illness, day and night.

Although this task is not one of the easiest, this important institution had hundreds of male and female members, who took this great precept upon themselves and would donate much of their time and rest to this important institution.

The Society also saw to it that the poor sufferers should, besides that, also receive financial support and it also sent many of them, at its expenses, for treatment to Otwock or to other sanatoriums, in adherence to the doctors’ instructions, of course.

The Society also had various medical appliances in its storage facility, which it would lend out to various patients who did not require night and/or day vigils, but only such appliances.

The last board of management of the Society comprised members Brzezinski, Grundman, Grylak, Jurkewicz, Dr Lipinski, Majtlis, Krel, Rozenchwajg and Dr Rus.

---

* [Translator’s note: Heb.; lit., “Lodgings of Righteousness”, i.e., providing adequate hospitality.]