J. Kalman Grosberg

Kalman Grosberg was born in Radomsko and came to Częstochowa at the age of thirteen where, over the course of time, he became well-known to all of the city's residents.

He was a deeply religious Jew and, being honourable and a man of charity, he did everything for Jews of an impoverished standing, so that they had [provisions] for Shabbes and holidays.

He was a good [Torah scroll] reader, especially at the Radomsker shtiebel, as well as at Bikur Cholim, and the municipal study-hall.

He arrived in America in 1924 and died in 1944 in Los Angeles, California, at the age of 86.
