

The murderer of Jews, Keßler, stands with his head bowed. Next to him is the witness Aron Owieczko who, before the tribunal, recounts Keßler's gruesome deeds. Keßler burned Jews alive. Among others, also his wife Jadzia, aged thirty-two, and his little five-year-old daughter Halusia. Keßler was sentenced to death and hanged in Częstochowa.

Remember What Amalek Did Unto Thee!

The schoolmistress Mrs Wajzman with the little children saved in Częstochowa. During the Nazi time, these children were hidden in various bunkers.

The First Victims of The Nazi Regime Were Our Fathers and Torah Scholars

Reb Lajbel Kantor z"l, an industrialist and Torah scholar, perished in Treblinka. Of all his large family [only] one son survived, who was in Soviet Russia - who is Dr Cwi Kantor, Chairman of our Landsmannschaft.

Jewish life is accompanied by grief and tears. An exhumation in Częstochowa.

A group of Częstochower landsleit in the Buchenwald concentration camp. This photograph was taken after liberation.

Ul Mostowa in the Small Ghetto. The arrow indicates the lime pit into which the Jew-murderer Laszyński, a Volksdeutsch, threw victims from the "Small Ghetto".

In the times of the "Big Ghetto": three young Jews at forced labour. The first on the left is named Leon Unglik and is currently in Bamberg. The others perished.

A group of escapees from the Treblinka death camp, among them three Częstochower landsleit. In the front row, the one sitting on the right side is Jakow Ajzner; the first two standing on the left are Abram-Lajb Bomba and Mojsze Rapaport.

