

WEISSKOP (WEISKOP) Ludwik (1914-1942?), musician. He was born in Częstochowa into a musical family, his brother (?) was → Jakub.

He studied in Częstochowa, He was musically gifted so, in 1928-1931, he studied music in Riga, with Prof. Metz.

Upon returning to Poland, he settled in Łódź. As a violinist, he played with various orchestras, including the "Ha'Zamir" (Nightingale) Orchestra, directed by I. Zaks.

Prior to September 1939, he returned to Częstochowa and was forced to live in the local ghetto during the German occupation. It is presumed that, in 1942, he was transported to the Treblinka extermination camp by the Germans.

Fater, Muzyka żydowska, p. 315.

Juliusz Sętowski